Qualitative and Quantitative Analysis of Food Dyes. Step 1 - Dye Separation. Dye Separation: In this step, the dye mixture is poured into the column for separation. Once in the column, water is added and the dyes begin to move down the column. The blue dye is more strongly attracted to the particles in the column and moves more slowly, while the red dye is more strongly attracted to the water and thus moves more quickly through the column.

Spectrophotometry is a very important and useful tool, which involves the interaction of matter with electromagnetic radiation (EM). The spectrophotometer that you will use in this experiment measures the visible portion of the EM spectrum, from 400-800 nm (1 nm = 10-9m). The spectrophotometer will be used to find the absorption of a food dye at several different concentrations and then used to determine the unknown concentration of the same food dye.
