The adjustment is not just simply turn screw in to speed engine up, loosen screw to reduce idle speed. Change the amount of air getting past throttle plates will change the idle speed, but, be aware that the computer will attempt reduce speed on its own. This would cause issues and will likely trigger the check engine light.

Idle speed is very low and dies - Silverado Sierra GMC ...

Typically, the idle speed will be set at a value in the range of 600 to 800 RPM, but the exact value will depend on the number of engine cylinders and whether the vehicle is equipped with a manual or automatic transmission. Idle speed is maintained by the throttle body working in conjunction with the vehicle's powertrain control module.

When the valves get blocked, the precise amount of fuel can't be suitably matched with the amount of air heading toward the engine. Deteriorating idle air control valves also cause the engine RPM to drop very low. Shop for your idle air control valve for GMC Yukon online with
