Trump The Press Don Surbers

The rise of Donald Trump to the presidency, and the news media's inability to foresee it have greatly amused Surber. Using wit, logic, and the media's own words and predictions against them, he wrote Trump the Press: Don Surber's Take on How the Pundits Blew the 2016 Republican Race, and Trump the Establishment, which covered the general election. The media's refusal to accept Trump's election prompted Surber to again research what they said and compare it to what really happened.

Press may refuse to say Trump won. The Associated Press and others are conspiring to not declare a winner on Election Night. This will sow doubt in the election results, which Democrats believe they can overturn through riots and other chaos. It is as serious a threat to the republic as we have seen in our lifetimes.

Don Surber: Trump's manliness vs. Biden's fragility

Surber, a recovering journalist with over 30 years of experience, was recently inspired to consolidate his many posts on the woefully inaccurate punditry concerning Trump's campaign for his new book: Trump the Press. Trump the Press is a savvy, witty read that had me engaged from the first sentence. I read my copy in one sitting, on the flight back from the East Coast last night.

Trump The Press Don Surbers Take On How The Pundits Blew

In punchy, tightly written chapters, Don Surber reviews the GOP primary process, from announcements, to primaries, to majority delegate position for Donald Trump, and has a blast with the conventional wisdom of the press and the pundits (who in general performed abysmally) who got to see their predictions fail in a short time, again and again.

In 2016, Donald John Trump did something that I don't believe any president has done before by winning every Senate race in every state he carried. Republicans were 22-0 in the 30 states he carried. Even FDR in 1932 failed to shut out his opponents. Naturally, the imbeciles in the press box got it wrong.
