Ooh, these books really do tend to go to the creepy side. But let's think about
this—you're young,
scared, maybe not so
confident—and someone shows you a bit of attention. Great at first, isn't it—to be loved and adored?

I almost passed on Rosemary Graham's STALKER GIRL. I couldn't help but think it might be just a bit too creepy.. a bit too weird... for my tastes. When I browse contemporary YA titles, I generally look for topics and characters I can identify with, and, when I think of words to describe myself, stalker typically doesn't come to mind.

Stalker Girl. She wasn't always like this. Carly Finnegan has a life. Not a perfect life, but a life. She has friends, a cute little sister, a passion for archaeology. But then Brian, her first love, breaks up with her, and Carly is crushed. When she discovers he's seeing someone new—Taylor Deen—she's devastated. Yet also curious.
