Promised Bodies. Book Description: In the Christian tradition, especially in the works of Paul, Augustine, and the exegetes of the Middle Ages, the body is a twofold entity consisting of inner and outer persons that promises to find its true materiality in a time to come. A potentially transformative vehicle, it is a dynamic mirror that can reflect the work of the divine within and substantially alter its own materiality if receptive to divine grace.

In Promised Bodies, Patricia Dailey presents a bold new approach to the study of medieval women's mystical literature, suggesting that categorizing such literature on the basis of gender has led to a consistent essentializing of women even by those scholars most interested in retrieving their voices. While acknowledging Caroline Walker Bynum's foundational influence on the field, Dailey positions herself in a lineage of critique (alongside Sarah Beckwith, Nicholas Watson, and Amy ...
