Bio/muco-adhesive systems: bind to the gastric epithelial cell surface or mucin, which extends the GRT of drug delivery system in the stomach. The ability to provide adhesion of a drug delivery system to the gastrointestinal wall provides longer residence time in a particular organ site, thereby producing an improved effect in terms of local action or systemic effect. Binding of polymers to the mucin/epithelial surface can be divided into three categories: 1.

Bio Adhesive Drug Delivery System - SlideShare

Bioadhesive systems provide intimate contact between a dosage form and the absorbing tissue, which may result in high concentration in a local area and hence high drug flux through the absorbing tissue. The efficacy of oral bioadhesive drug delivery systems is affected by the biological environment and the properties of the polymer and the drug.

Oral bioadhesive drug delivery systems - PubMed

The main components of bioadhesive drug delivery systems are bioadhesive polymers, which may be natural or synthetic in nature. The success of bioadhesive drug delivery systems depends upon bioadhesion bonding, which is influenced by polymer-based properties like chain length, cross linking, and presence of various functional groups.
