What is Software Requirement Specifications? A software requirements specification (SRS) is a description of an agreement between the customer and the supplier/contractor about the functional and non-functional requirements of the software system to be developed. This document will be used as a reference base for the development process.

SRS - Software Requirement Specifications with Template

A functional specification in systems engineering and software development is a document that specifies the functions that a system or component must perform. The documentation typically describes what is needed by the system user as well as requested properties of inputs and outputs. A functional specification is the more technical response to a matching requirements document, e.g. the Product Requirements Document "PRD". Thus it picks up the results of the requirements analysis stage. On more
