 One of the things you will find if you have a oil temperature gauge is that regardless of the fact that oil is running through your engine and cooling it just like the coolant - it takes on and loses heat differently than coolant. Oil temperature is probably the most important thing to know. Free revving (or worse - racing) on an engine that has not fully reached its oil operating temperature is extremely dangerous.

80-95°C - This is a normal oil temperature for an engine under not too much load. 100-110°C This is a normal reading if the engine is working particularly hard, for example when towing. Above 110°C The oil starts to thin out seriously and lose its ability to lubricate the engine and dissipate heat from components.
