Providing a detailed history of behaviourism in American psychology, this volume sets out to balance the investigation of individual theorists and their contributions with analysis of the structures of assumption which underlie behaviourist psychology, and with behaviourism's role as both creator and creature of larger American intellectual patterns, practices and values.

Classical Conditioning Classical conditioning is a technique frequently used in behavioral training in which a neutral stimulus is paired with a naturally occurring stimulus. Eventually, the neutral stimulus comes to evoke the same response as the naturally occurring stimulus, even without the naturally occurring stimulus presenting itself.

History and Key Concepts of Behavioral Psychology

Radical behaviorism was founded by B.F Skinner and agreed with the assumption of methodological behaviorism that the goal of psychology should be to predict and control behavior. Skinner, like Watson, also recognized the role of internal mental events, and while he agreed such private events could not be used to explain behavior, he proposed they should be explained in the analysis of behavior.
