History of Hertfordshire | Map and description for the county

The 20th century was of special significance for the county: it brought to Hertfordshire the two pioneer "garden cities" of the modern era—Letchworth (1903) and Welwyn Garden City (1920)—and four of the eight new towns planned around London since World War II—Hatfield, Hemel Hempstead, Stevenage, and Welwyn. Even apart from that planned growth, the residential and industrial development of other centres such as Watford was rapid.
