Decolonizing Methodologies Research Indigenous Peoples

Here, an indigenous researcher issues a clarion call for the decolonization of research methods in an attempt to reclaim control over indigenous ways of knowing and being. Now in its second edition, this book critically examines the bases of Western research, while also suggesting literature which validates one's frustrations in dealing with western methodologies, all of which position the indigenous as 'Other.'

Decolonizing Methodologies: Research and Indigenous ...

Linda Tuhiwai Smith's decolonial methodology is centered around the politics of sovereignty and self-determination for indigenous peoples. She mentions that for indigenous peoples it is important to resist "being thrown in" with every other minority group by making claims based on prior rights.

Decolonizing Methodologies: Research and Indigenous Peoples

Decolonizing methodologies: research and indigenous peoples Linda Tuhiwai Smith From the vantage point of the colonized, the term 'research' is inextricably linked with European colonialism; the ways in which scientific research has been implicated in the worst excesses of imperialism remains a powerful remembered history for many of the world's colonized peoples.
