It started with the metal cutting band saw, invented by our founder Mr.Leighton A. Wilkie in 1933. He was the first to produce all three vital elements for band sawing: sawing machines, band saw blades and cutting fluids. DoALL invented the Bi-Metal band saw blade and released many improvements over the years.

DoALL provides manual, semi-automatic and automatic metalworking band saws. A manual or gravity saw requires an operator to manually feed the material, lift the saw head and close the vise, With a semi-automatic saw, a hydraulic or pneumatic vise raises the saw head, but an operator needs to feed material. With an automatic saw, an operator programs the saw for fully automated material feed (indexing) and cutting.
