The purpose of Logical Analysis is to analyse assertions and make clear their sense, which involves determining their method of verification.

notes on - "Philosophy and Logical Syntax"

The most famous syllogism in philosophy is this: All men are mortal (major premise) Socrates is a man (minor premise) $\therefore$ Socrates is mortal (conclusion) Notice that the major premise provides the predicate, while the minor premise provides the subject. As long as both premises are true, the conclusion must be true as well.
