The Pakistan-India Border, known locally as the International Border, is an international border running between Pakistan and India. The border runs from the Line of Control, which separates Indian-administered Kashmir from Pakistan-administered Kashmir, in the north, to the Sir Creek in Rann of Kutch between the Indian state of Gujarat and the Sindh province of Pakistan, in the south. Drafted and created based upon the Radcliffe line in 1947, the border, which divides Pakistan and India ...
