Coordination polymers and MOFs, in which a metal complex links to another one by a bridging organic ligand, have also been used as approach to immobilize catalysts. 192-194 Usually, these materials present permanent porosity, a well-established structure by X-ray studies, and featuring strong (covalent) bonds between the metal atoms and the linkers, leading to good chemical and thermal stability in addition to the low solubility in the common solvents. Despite the recent developments, the ...

Coordination Polymer - an overview | ScienceDirect Topics

A coordination polymer is an inorganic or organometallic polymer structure containing metal cation centers linked by ligands. More formally a coordination polymer is a coordination compound with repeating coordination entities extending in 1, 2, or 3 dimensions. It can also be described as a polymer whose repeat units are coordination complexes. Coordination polymers contain the subclass coordination networks that are coordination compounds extending, through repeating coordination entities ...
