Membrane Filtration Solutions Water Treatment

There are several different options for the pre-treatment of the source water, including coagulation in systems with colloidal particles, sedimentation (also known as gravity settling), flocculation, and additional early stage filtration using other mediums to get rid of larger particles before they clog the finer membrane pores.

Membrane Fouling - Water Treatment Services

Membrane Technology for Water Purification & Wastewater Treatment
The term membrane technology is used to describe a variety of liquid filtration and separation processes that includes micro-filtration, ultra-filtration, nano-filtration and reverse osmosis.

Membrane Technology for Water Purification and Wastewater ...

Membranes were first applied to water treatment processes in the 1960s, but in the next decade, they became increasingly used for desalination. Now, the list of membrane processes used in water treatment has lengthened to include: Forward osmosis; Reverse osmosis; Microfiltration; Ultrafiltration; Nanofiltration

Water Treatment Membranes and Their Processes | Fluence

Membrane Solutions is known for its state of the art water & wastewater treatment systems, and not only has researched and manufactured our own extremely high performance Membranes and Membrane Modules with an excellent R&D group, and also provides the best water solution and the flexible Membrane Systems as different client's requirements.

Membrane Filtration System - Membrane Solutions

By implementing various sustainable technologies such as RO concentration in combination with different water purification methods, water intake and effluent volumes will drop dramatically. The aim is to provide the right water quality for the purpose. Food safety and local legislation

In waste water treatment, membrane technology is becoming increasingly important. With the help of ultra/microfiltration it is possible to remove particles, colloids and macromolecules, so that waste-water can be disinfected in this way. This is needed if waste-water is discharged into sensitive waters especially those designated for contact water-sports and recreation.

Membrane technology - Wikipedia

Filtration membranes are applied to liquid filtration such as biomass removal for food, bacteria removal in city water preparation, waste water treatment, circulating water filtration, and slurry concentration; and gas filtration such as dust removal from incineration exhaust, and carbon particles removal from diesel exhaust.
