The Houses Of Louis Kahn

"The Houses of Louis Kahn . . . provides an architectural bridge between the personal and the professional stories, focusing on the nine houses Kahn completed, and designs for two dozen more. The story told by the authors, George H. Marcus and William Whitaker, is one of warm client relations, attention to the smallest domestic detail and a philosophical search for the best arrangement of rooms to call home."

Unfortunately, if you've ever dreamed of owning a Kahn home yourself, the Esherick House (see lead photo) just went off the market this past February after being listed for several years. The listing underwent several price drops, most likely due to the fact that the house contains just one bedroom. Located in Philadelphia's Chestnut Hill neighborhood and built between 1959 and 1962 for bookseller Margaret Esherick, what the house lacks in size, it makes up for in character.

The house sits on the former estate of hat baron J.B. Stetson, so it already had some features that Kahn had to work around: "He had little choice," reads The Houses of Louis Kahn, "but to situate the house above, on a north-facing slope." The fireplace, surrounded by Mercer tile, was a standout in the press, as it was the anchor of what Kahn called the conversation nook—a kind of ...

Richly illustrated with new and period photographs and original drawings, as well as previously unpublished materials from personal interviews, archives, and Kahn's own writings, The Houses of Louis Kahn shows how his ideas about domestic spaces challenged conventions, much like his major public commissions, and were developed into one of the most remarkable expressions of the American house.

Morven Museum & Garden

The Escherick House in Philadelphia, is one of the most studied of the nine built houses designed by American architect Louis Kahn.

Commissioned by Margaret Esherick, it was completed in 1961. The house is noted especially for its spatial organization and for the ventilation and natural lighting provided by its unusual window and shutter configuration. A sunken bathtub doubled as a seat. A kitchen of wood and copper was created for the house by Wharton Esherick, a nationally known craftsman and a
