Transcript for this Giancoli solution. The only force this child on the sled is going to experience horizontally speaking is this applied force. So the applied force will equal the net force, and that means we have a formula for it because F_net equals mass times acceleration. So we plug in the sixty kilogram mass of the child with sled times one and a quarter meters per second squared acceleration giving us seventy five point zero Newtons is the force needed to do that in the 6th Edition.
