Relational sociology is a collection of sociological theories that emphasize relationalism over substantivalism in explanations and interpretations of social phenomena and is most directly connected to the work of Harrison White and Charles Tilly in the United States and Pierpaolo Donati and Nick Crossley in Europe.

Relational sociology - Wikipedia

Broadly speaking, relational poverty analysis focuses on the socio-economic-political relationships between the poor and those who are in position to affect their life (Wood, 2003; Elwood et al., 2017). As Wood (2003, p. 456) notes, 'people are poor because of others', who 'have more control over them'.
