What is Histamine Intolerance? Histamine Intolerance occurs when the body has more histamine than it can get rid of. The body gets rid of histamine with specific enzymes, like Diamine Oxidase (DAO) and Histamine N-methyltransferase (HNMT). If you don't have enough of those enzymes, histamine can build to high levels. Think of histamine intolerance like a sink with a drain. Histamine flows in from the faucet and the enzymes are the drain that get rid of histamine.
