An Offset Algorithm For Polyline

In this paper, an offset algorithm for polyline curves is presented and its target is to obtain all the offset curves. And the offset algorithm can deal with polyline curves that are closed, self-intersection, overlapping or containing small arcs. For example, Figs. 1(c) and 2(c) illustrate the offset results from the algorithm proposed in this paper.

In the paper, an offset algorithm for polyline curves is proposed. The offset algorithm firstly obtains an untrimmed offset curve of a polyline curve using the trim or joint algorithm for offset curves of its segments. Then the offset results are gained after applying the clipping algorithm to the untrimmed offset curve.

There may be ways to program this functionality in arcpy using trig, but that seems really hard. Essentially, the product I'd like is an offset polyline that preserves all original geometry and curvature. Simply using a SearchCursor on the input and building a new feature class based on its geometry requires some algorithm I don't know.
