Fuel Injection Systems. Multiport and sequential fuel injection systems both inject atomized fuel into a port just before the intake valve. There is a difference in the way these systems operate. Multiport injection systems fire the injectors in groups. A four-cylinder engine may fire the #1 and the #3 injectors on the first crankshaft revolution and then fire the #2 and #4 on the second revolution.

What Are The Different Types of Fuel Injection? | News ...

Fuel injection is the introduction of fuel in an internal combustion engine, most commonly automotive engines, by the means of an injector. This article focuses on fuel injection in reciprocating piston and rotary piston engines. All Diesel (compression-ignition) engines use fuel injection, and many Otto (spark-ignition) engines use fuel injection of one kind or another.

Fuel injection - Wikipedia

Gasoline direct injection (GDI) is a more advanced version of multiport systems, where fuel is injected directly into the combustion chamber instead of the intake port. Direct injection improves combustion efficiency, increases fuel economy and lowers emissions. Both systems use electronic fuel injectors to spray fuel into the engine, but the difference is where they spray the fuel.
