Scripture And The Authority Of

Summary. The doctrine of the authority and inerrancy of Scripture is rooted in the doctrine of God; as God is true and trustworthy, so is his word recorded in the original autographs of Scriptures. This means that all things that the Scriptures assert are wholly true, both in the Old Testament, the Scriptures of Jesus and the apostles, and in the New Testament, the writings of the apostles.

For Barth, the Bible's authority is purely derived from its function, and that function is to point to God himself, that "Other Thing" by which Barth meant revelation (for Barth, God in personal encounter with us through Jesus Christ is revelation), who is the real authority. In and of itself, Scripture has no authority, and it is easy to see why Barth held that view.

The Authority of Scripture | Crossway Articles

Creation Ministries International accepts the authority of Scripture as an axiom or presupposition: i.e. as a starting point or assumption that requires no proof, and is the basis for all reasoning. All philosophical systems start with axioms. So it's not a question of a religious system starting from prior assumptions vs. a 'scientific' system without any prior assumptions, but which axioms are self-consistent and provide a consistent framework in which to fit the evidence.

The reliability and authority of the Bible may be handled by considering Scripture's (1) inspiration, (2) inerrancy and infallibility, and (3) clarity and sufficiency. As we consider these marks of God's Word, we are reminded that the Bible is both utterly reliable and completely authoritative; believers can depend on it, and believers must yield to it.
