Developing Health Education Programs In

Health education is one strategy for implementing health promotion and disease prevention programs. Health education provides learning experiences on health topics. Health education strategies are tailored for their target population. Health education presents information to target populations on particular health topics, including the health benefits/threats they face, and provides tools to build capacity and support behavior change in an appropriate setting.

Developing countries. Developing countries have sometimes been influenced in their approaches to health care problems by the developed countries that have had a role in their history. For example, the countries in Africa and Asia that were once colonies of Britain have educational programs and health care systems that reflect British patterns, though there have been adaptations to local needs.
