Workplace design refers to the process of designing and organizing a workplace to optimize worker performance and safety. It is an important health and safety issue for workers in both high-risk environments (such as construction sites) and low-risk workplaces (such as offices).

What is Workplace Design? - Definition from Safeopedia

A web designer's main job is to design web pages. There is a lot to consider in the design of websites which may not be immediately apparent when looking at a webpage for the first time. The aesthetic aspect is an important one and selecting the appropriate colors, font, layout and images creates the whole personality of the website.
