What Does Aikido Mean

Aikido Body Mind And Spirit

Body and mind support each other and progress together. The aikidoka feels through his body that his gestures, his physical behavior, have a spiritual extension. The practice of dodging, the art of canalizing energies without blocking, and the habit of being physically available and receptive, all help him to discover a philosophy of peace, non-violence, and altruism.

Our philosophy is that each of us have three distinct and interconnected aspects: Body, Mind, and Spirit. A healthy person is strong in each, and our mission is to help improve this balance through sharpening the mind and body. A healthy spirit cannot reside in an unhealthy body or with an unhealthy mind.

Spirit Aikido

Aikido heightens the mind-body connection so that body, mind and spirit become one. This makes us a single energy, a single force, a complete circle. We become a perfect system, the co-creator of our own destiny, our creativity and consciousness working as an integral part of the universe. This inner harmony is the source of great strength.
