The answer here is an improper fraction; changing it into a mixed number is easy: Add fractions the traditional way Use the traditional way only when you can’t use either of the other methods (or when you know the least common multiple (LCM) just by looking at the denominators).

How to Add Fractions with Different Denominators - dummies

Find the common denominator. You have to find a common denominator — that is, find the same number that each denominator will divide into evenly. So, you can fit the two fractions together by multiplying both the numerators and the denominators by the same number: Add the numerators. When you add the numerators, leave the common denominator alone.
