Characteristics. Films are similar to novels or short stories in that they tell a story. They include the same genres: romantic, historical, detective, thriller, adventure, horror, and science fiction. However, films may also include sub-groups such as: action, comedy, tragedy, westerns and war. The methods you use to analyze a film are closely related to those used to analyze literature; nevertheless, films are multimedial.

Lighting is a fundamental to film because it creates a visual mood, atmosphere, and sense of meaning for the audience. Whether it's dressing a film set or blocking actors, every step of the cinematic process affects the lighting setup, and vice-versa. Lighting tells the audience where to look. The lighting setup guides the eye to a specific actor, prop, or part of a scene.

Movies are a form of communication and that communication, those stories, come from societies- not just where society is presently and what it's doing now- but where society has been. It's been that way for as long as movies have been around! Movies are different things to different people, that's what is so incredible about them.
