Mission in the Bible finds its raison d'être in the failure of God's first son (Adam) in the covenant of works to establish worldwide worship. Adam was meant to win righteousness, life, and justification for the human race and lead us to worship God in spirit and truth; instead he brought sin, death, and condemnation on the human race and led us into idolatrous worship of created things instead of our Creator.

Chris Wright's pioneering 2006 book, The Mission of God, revealed that the typical Christian understanding of 'missions' encompasses only a small part of God's overarching mission for the world. God is relentlessly reclaiming the entire world for himself. In The Mission of God's People, Wright shows how God's big-picture plan directs the purpose of God's people, the church.

Theology of mission is a multi- and inter-disciplinary enterprise. It is a relatively new discipline, with its first text appearing in 1961, in a collection of essays edited by Gerald Anderson, entitled, The Theology of Christian Mission (Anderson: 1961). In that volume the tri-partite nature of theology of mission was clearly represented.

The Bible is “a record of theology in mission – God in action in behalf of the salvation of mankind.” [10] His mission to bring all things into accord with His eternal purpose culminates in the coming kingdom of God (cf. 1 Cor 15:24-28; Eph 3:11; Rev 11:15; 12:10; 20:1-6). The doctrine of God, Man, Sin, Creation, Eschatology, and all other biblically revealed topics affix to the mission of God.

The Theology of Missions - What is God's Plan for Mankind?

"It is my impression that the Bible is not a book about theology as such, but rather, a record of theology in mission - God in action in behalf of the salvation of mankind." George W. Peters writes like an academic, but it's good for you to read a little over your head (in my case, a lot over my head).

A Biblical Theology of Mission | Missio Dei

Missionaries everywhere are seeking for a systematic theology of mission which will help guide them in the difficult responsibility they bear in the name of Christ. Theologians are becoming increasingly involved in missionary questions, because of the growing prominence of doctrinal, ecclesiastical and ecumenical problems in the worldwide Church.

The Theology of the Christian Mission: A Review Article

Synopsis. New Studies in Biblical Theology Few biblical topics are as important as mission. Mission is inextricably linked to humanity's sinfulness and need for redemption, and to God's provision of salvation in the person and work of Jesus Christ. This 'good news' of salvation must, however, be made known.
