United States, the district court refused to enforce plaintiff's Rule 45 subpoena that sought documents from defendant's expert witness. Although acknowledging that the language of Rule 45 was unclear, the Alper court insisted that since a party proffers an expert witness, that witness should be considered under the party's control. Because the expert witness was "within defendant's control," the court noted that Rule 34 rather than Rule 45 governed the requested discovery.
