Gould, Managing the Construction Process, 4th Edition ...

Construction estimating is the process of anticipating the expense of building a physical structure. This step is essential, and one of the most crucial in the construction process. Estimators need to be as accurate as possible because profit margins (the livelihood of contractors) are impacted if any estimated direct and indirect costs for the project are off by even the slight amount.

Construction Estimating 101: Everything You Need To Know ...

The estimating process begins with a thorough understanding (and visualization) of the project's scope of work. Architects and engineers define scope in plans and specifications, but for construction estimating, this scope is incomplete. Successful "hard bid" contractors know very well that scoping construction goes well beyond the Architect/Engineer scope and must include field-specific scope ...
