Choose your level of heat. Typically, most golf cart heaters have several heating options. Pick which one suits your needs and let it run at that level. 4. Check your heater as you golf. Make sure to turn off your heater when you're out of the cart to avoid draining your battery or your propane tank. 5. Remove the heater when you're done golfing. Carefully unplug or unscrew your heater – after waiting 10-15 minutes to cool it down – and remove it from your cart.

Removing the heater controls is the first thing I did three screws and the whole thing just flops down. The reasoning behind this is that some guides will say undo cable wires to the heater vent box, but take the whole system out in one as long as the heater controls are feed through the centre column.
