Martin-Logan Monoliths require AC power to energize their electrostatic cells. Using the AC power cords provided, plug them in, making sure that you have made a firm connection, first to the AC power receptacle on the rear panel of the speaker and then to the wall outlet. Extension cords may be used, if necessary, since the AC power requirement of the Monolith is extremely small.

Martin Logan speakers are grade A junk. They lost their company to another company out of Canada. They used cheap supplies and crap labor to slap together their speakers. If your speaker breaks, it'll take literally years to get it into their repair shop, fixed, and sent back. They have trucks upon trucks of broken speakers waiting to be fixed.
