When building farm sets using MDF, you'll make the plans for your project by knowing you'll be ripping the wood in strips, and then cross-cutting it down to get all the parts you need. And MDF is perfect for this, but you could save money by only asking the merchant for the amount of sheet material you need - 4ft by 4ft should be enough in 12 or 18mm thickness.

The only building houses the milking parlour and the milk room, in the centre of the pasture. In the western United States, the most important beef ranches have several thousand head, entirely free on the range. The only building is the elevator with the milling and mixing machinery. For the animals there are only troughs and fences.
