Abaqus : Static tire analysis

ABAQUS provides many nice features for tire modeling. For example, one may use embedded element technique in order to reduce the analysis time, but still obtain accurate results enough e.g. for tire lateral stiffness simulations. Other useful feature is steady state transport-capability, which enables some steady-state-handling simulations.

Using ABAQUS in tire development process

This seminar covers topics addressing advanced tire modeling techniques and serves as a follow-up to the Tire Analysis with Abaqus: Fundamentals course. The topics include: Substructuring and submodeling; Steady-state rolling using Eulerian techniques in Abaqus/Standard; Hydroplaning simulation using Coupled

Eulerian-Lagrangian technique

Tire Analysis with Abaqus: Advanced Topics

The tire wear is analysed on the basis of Archard wear theory. The Finite Element Analysis software ABAQUS 6.14 is used for the analysis and the tire is modelled using CREO 2.0. This work includes the tread wear analysis of different types of rubber used to make tire tread and also the influence of inflation pressure on tire wear will be studied.

Vol. 5, Issue 8, August 2016 Tire Wear Analysis using ABAQUS

The Lagrangian solution is obtained by performing an explicit transient analysis using Abaqus/Explicit (discussed in Import of a steady-state rolling tire).

With this analysis technique a prescribed constant traveling velocity is applied to the tire, which is free to roll along the rigid surface.

Steady-state rolling analysis of a tire

Abaqus provides axisymmetric elements with twist (CGAX) for such situations. These elements are used to model the inflation loading. Only half the tire cross-section is needed for the inflation analysis due to a reflection symmetry through the vertical line that passes through the tire axle (see Figure 2). We refer to this model as the axisymmetric model.

Since only elements common to both Abaqus/Standard and Abaqus/Explicit can be imported, reduced-integration solid elements are used in this example and nodes in the bead area are attached to rigid elements representing the rim.
