In a very specific way, scaffolding represents a reduction in the many choices a child might face, so that they become focused only on acquiring the skill or knowledge that is required. The simplistic elegance of Bruner's theory means that scaffolding can be applied across all sectors, for all ages and for all topics of learning.

Jerome Bruner On The Scaffolding Of Learning

In the scaffolding framework, the practitioner plays a supportive role in the child's learning. Your role is also to observe the children, recognise the stage of learning they are at and then provide support to help them to reach the next stage. You should work to provide activities just slightly above the children's ability.

Both agree that adults should play an active role in assisting the child's learning. Bruner, like Vygotsky, emphasized the social nature of learning, citing that other people should help a child develop skills through the process of scaffolding.

Bruner - Learning Theory in Education | Simply Psychology

There are three essential features of scaffolding that facilitate learning. The first feature is the interaction between the learner and the expert. This interaction should be collaborative for it to be effective. The second is that learning should take place in the learner's zone of proximal development. To do that the expert needs to be aware of the learner's current level of knowledge and then work to a certain extent beyond that level.
